

Partneraktivität (A)

- A. You just returned from a one-week vacation to Germany. Unfortunately, you bumped your head on the airplane as you returned to the United States and have forgotten many of the entertaining experiences you had while there. Fortunately, however your partner was on the trip with you and can tell you all about the time spans which you have forgotten.

Beispiel: Was habe ich am Montagvormittag gemacht?

Du bist Wasserski gelaufen.

am Sonntagnachmittag?

am Montagabend?

am Dienstagvormittag?

am Mittwochabend?

am Donnerstagnachmittag?

am Freitagvormittag?

am Samstagabend?

- B. As you were working on your car, a friend startled you and caused you to hit your head again, this time on the car hood. When you recovered consciousness, you realized that your memory had returned! Now you have to help your partner, who had an unfortunate run-in with a tree limb. Use the conversational past to answer your partner's questions.

Sonntagvormittag: nach Berlin fahren

Montagnachmittag: das Rote Rathaus besichtigen

Dienstagabend: zu viel Mineralwasser trinken

Mittwochnachmittag: um den See schwimmen

Donnerstagvormittag: einen Ausflug nach Potsdam machen

Freitagabend: ein Stück der Mauer kaufen

Samstagnachmittag: der Tante beim Kochen helfen

Partneraktivität (B)

- A. You and your partner just returned from a vacation in Germany. Unfortunately, he or she has forgotten much of what happened during the trip due to a run-in with the airplane door. Since you stayed together most of the time you were there, you can remind your partner about all the entertaining experiences he or she had. Use the conversational past to answer your partner's questions.

Beispiel: Was habe ich am Montagvormittag gemacht?

Du bist Wasserski gelaufen.

Sonntagnachmittag: Musik hören

Montagabend: ins Kino gehen

Dienstagvormittag: Leberkäse mit Senf essen

Mittwochabend: Schach mit dem Weltmeister spielen

Donnerstagnachmittag: im Hotel bleiben

Freitagvormittag: in den Bergen wandern

Samstagabend: das Buch der Zauberberg lesen

- B. Being similarly accident-prone, you bumped your head on a tree limb right after returning to the U.S., and are experiencing partial amnesia. Fortunately, though, you told your partner all about your experiences in Germany before your accident. How he or she will answer your questions about what you did there.
